

Everything They've Fought For Has A Name: FREEDOM

Years have passed and in their eyes you can see the soldiers that died
The sorrow could eat your soul
One shouldn't know the things they know
They've fought for us and what we need
Our freedom
Our rights
And what we believe
Wars have been fought and are over now
That doesn't mean we've forgotten all the soldiers that fell
They were our sons
Daughters
Aunts
Uncles
Mothers
And fathers
Because of your loss I grieve for you
But today's the day we celebrate all the soldiers that made it through
That fought for the U.S
The red, white, and blue
That stands next to us today
Next to me and you
To these men and women I have the greatest respect
They've seen the war
They've seen it all
They've seen their friends shot
Wounded and fall
They've fought for our freedom and risked losing it all
But in God's hands they've come out alive
Standing proud and tall
That flag is the emblem that it'll all be all right
That beautiful flag waving day and night
Now I ask you to remember the hope and memories
Forget the hate and enemies
And love each other as if they were your families
Thank you Veterans for all you have done
Your sacrifice for this country shall never be undone
Now and always because of you our freedom has been won
Hearts of a soldier they call it
The things you've seen can never be "unsawn"
I know it hurt and you lost a lot
But you got what you came for
The freedom you sought

By

Kaly Otero

8th grade

Keshequa Central School

Nov. 11, 2009